The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Nov. 2

WITH concentrated energies focused upon the preparation, plans and launching of new projects on this day there is forecast for fair success, according to the lunar transits. The endorsement of those in power and standing will further accelerate quickened energies, sustaining faculties of initiative and productive ambitions.

Those whose birthday it is should respond to high stimuli of the creative forces and faculties, probably entering into new propositions with vim and determination to succeed and route a few discordant or annoying situations. The cooperation or endorsement of those in place and power should greatly advance those ambitious projects pursued with progressive ideas and concentrated and practical effort.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, probably aggressive and strenuous in pursuit of its progressive objectives.

Daily Pattern for Home Use

By ANNE ADAMS

TRIM, TAILORED SHIRTWAISTER

PATTERN 4604

Typically American in its casual, carefree style is the shirtwaister mode. Anne Adams offers a youthful version of this favorite style in Pattern 4604—a frock that is matronly in size only. There's slimming lines from every viewpoint, with front and back skirt panelling and the smartest of shoulder yokes. The bodice has been cut with just enough blousing for style and flattery, with its fullness placed "just right" and held by gathers and darts. A to-the-waist buttoning lets you in and out without mussing your curls. Have the young, rounded collar in contrast or matching fabric. Why not make two frocks —one in wool with long sleeves; the other in cotton or rayon with short sleeves?

Pattern 4604 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 2½ yards 54 inch fabric.

Send Fifteen Cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Extra! Extra! Everything about the Anne Adams Winter Fashion Book makes extra news! Its vivid pages are filled with styles new as tomorrow's headlines—each in a sure-to-fit pattern. Smart sewing for the whole family circle, including workaday modes and party frocks ...tailored twosomes and afternoon dresses...slimming matron styles and lively "small fry" outfits...basic wardrobes for office and campus. My Experience

My experience gained in officiating over 1,000 football and basketball games has taught me among other things the spirit of fair play.

I have been absolutely fair, clean and honest in my campaign.

My opponent in his attempt to cover up the third term issue has resorted to various mis-statements. Do not be misled by these last-minute statements. My opponent has been in that office for 10 consecutive years and now seeks his third term.

Suffered From Indigestion Due To Constipation

TRUE STORY NO. 9773

BY MRS. ROSA MALEY

"I had been feeling bad for some time and suffered daily from constipation, which caused such an upset stomach that my food didn't digest well, but lay heavy, gave me cramps and sour gas, and made me feel tight and bloated," said Mrs. Rosa Maley of 697 Bellefontaine Ave., Marion, to the Vendol Man in Eckerd's Cut Rate.

"The constipation got pretty bad lately, and this made me feel dizzy, and also my kidneys didn't act freely enough, which made me feel sore and stiff across my back.

"Vendol worked easily and pleasantly, giving thorough relief from constipation, and with this relief there also came grand relief from the indigestion, gas, sour stomach, cramps, dizziness and pains.

"After suffering so long it certainly is a joy to find a medicine like Vendol, and I can't thank it enough."

YOU CAN'T GO WRONG TO TRY "VENDOL"

Vendol has been on the market many years, and right here in Ohio hundreds have taken it and enjoyed grand relief, so you can't go wrong to try it, too. If you are constipated, which makes you suffer from acid indigestion, gas on the stomach, "heartburn," belching, acid risings, and cramps; if constipation is the cause of your headaches, dizziness, spots before your eyes; if the need of a mild diuretic action on your kidneys causes heavy feeling across your back, pains around your elbows and knees, and aching muscles, or any of the score other troubles associated with constipation, then by all means get some Vendol at once and see if it may not put you on the road back to health.

Most all druggists sell Vendol, and the Vendol Man is daily at Eckerd's Cut Rate Drug Co. to meet the public and explain all about this remarkable compound. Don't put it off—come see him today.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mahler Manson

...SUNDAY: Lynn Britton has been conducted by Temu Darin, ...ver will, across China and ... almost to the city of ... of Shani Lun. Lynn ... the Prince. Temu in... had rather marry Temu. ...mel has run away, and ... getting with Temu for a ... peasant to come up ... so she and Temu can ... to finish the long jour... Shani Lun.

CHAPTER 32

Battle of Love

WHEN Lynn woke in the morning, she saw Temu standing tall and straight on a hilltop scanning the horizon through field-glasses. She watched him with brooding eyes, a faint flush on her cheeks. Presently she turned and looked at the camel; the beast had died sometime during the night.

"Temu's friend," Lynn thought. She rose, staring at the eastern horizon warmed with promise of the rising sun.

Temu returned and stood at her shoulder. A tremor went through Lynn. "What happens when we die?" she asked.

"According to Sherdock, nothing happens. Tara Lynn, any more than when you turn a page in a book you are reading."

Lynn thought a minute. "I don't believe I'm the emanation of a goddess after all. I'm too stupid about these things of the spirit. I scheme around to find the three-dimensional explanations for everything. The last few days I've been thinking about the little missionary boy that became your Prince. Why, at the age of six he would have spoken English well if he were an average child."

Temu smiled. "I'm quite confident he wasn't subnormal."

Lynn refused to be deflected from her purpose. "Surely, missionary parents would not have taught their son the Buddhist mantra."

"Go on," he urged.

"He must have used English words. He must have said, 'O man, please take me home.' And Sherdock heard the mantra because he expected to hear it, wished to hear it. Do you know what the Prince thinks of the incident?"

"He was pretty young when it happened and under the handicap of orphanhood and starvation; he knows only that the words he must have said worked—worked to change him from an outcast into a Prince. And does your explanation lessen any of the mystery of the forces that brought Sherdock and the boy together?"

"I suppose not," she acknowledged slowly. She glanced up. "Why is the Prince content to stay here instead of returning home?"

"He did think once he would live in America. He tried it. He found no near relatives, no special work he wanted to do. The old Prince and Sherdock were begging him to come back and take up the responsibilities that belonged to him. He came."

"And became, as Dick says, a typical, native ruler sunk in vice and crime."

Temu looked up at the ridge which concealed the rising sun before he spoke. "Has it occurred to you that you might reform the man?"

She could not tell if there were irony in his voice or not. Nevertheless, her eyes blazed; she clenched her hands. "I could hate you for that, Temu Darin! Why sacrifice me to your degenerate Prince?"

"I do not consider it sacrifice. It is your destiny. He needs you."

"I do not need him."

"Oh, yes, you do, Lynn dear. You need someone to think of besides yourself. You are a rather self-centered and wilful girl at present..."

Brief Quarrel

"Since we're speaking home truths, Temu, you are a fanatic."

"That may be," he agreed.

"Then you think it is wrong for me to lead my own life?"

"I think that if you or I or any one will follow the pattern laid down for us, happiness will come. But let's not quarrel about it. The Prince is not as bad as your brother has painted him nor as deserving of good fortune perhaps as Sherdock thinks he is. Sherdock was pleased that the boy took after his father, a dark-skinned Scotchman, and grew up to resemble the people he lived among as happily married couples grow to look alike. The Prince finally decided that his childhood here had spoiled him for any other country."

"There is a sort of enchantment," Lynn agreed, breathing in the heady, mountain atmosphere. "But to stand it, one must believe with Sherdock that nothing matters much except the inner values."

Temu laughed. "Speaking of inner values, how about breakfast?" He proceeded skillfully to build a fire and brew their morning tea.

"Beyond this rise before us is a wide plateau," he said, "and I see a single yurta. Perhaps I can buy horses there. Do you wish to try the walk with me or to wait here until I return for you?"

"I'll go with you," she said.

He searched her face with its clear, unlined beauty. "You seem to stand up well under hardships."

"I'm a fiend for punishment," she acknowledged.

He brought the tea in the birch-wood bowls and sat down on the rug beside her.

"Are you unhappy?" he asked.

"I don't know." She looked up at him. "You enrage me dreadfully but I can't stay angry long. Just now I'm in a funny state of mind, reckless, abandoned. Have you ever associated with such a woman before?"

He smiled a little. "Not in these circumstances."

"I don't care what happens to us just so I stay with you."

He gave her a sidelong glance. "That is encouraging."

"I think you are a remarkable person. I cannot understand why Sherdock should go into the Koko Nor country looking for prince material and pick out a missionary's son when he had you at home."

Temu broke into quick laughter. "Lynn, you're the joy of my life."

She bent towards him. "Are you really incorruptible?"

He took her wrists and bade her, "Look into my eyes and tell me what you see."

She obeyed and presently nodded. "I suppose that's one of the reasons I admire you so much. Am I no temptation at all to you?"

"O Tara Lynn!" he groaned, and jumped to his feet. He set about packing the things they would carry with them. "We must be going," he said.

The tramp to the yurta was a long and tiring journey to people shod in Mongol boots. It was afternoon before they reached the spot. The tent housed a large family for Mongolia; a husband, a wife, and four children.

The man could spare none of the horses about the camp. But he sent his eldest son to bring in a pair of ponies from a herd in a lower valley. The boy could not return until the following morning.

Strange Evening

At Temu's insistence, Lynn lay down and rested a bit on a pile of furs inside the yurta, while he helped the family beat sheep's wool into felt on a level piece of sod near the well.

At dusk, along with a snow storm, a travelling lama arrived. He had come to perform religious offices for the well-being of the family and for a bounteous increase to their flocks. When they all crowded into the yurta Temu came and sat down beside Lynn.

"It's lucky you had some sleep this afternoon," he said. "There won't be much respose tonight with the lama here."

After a meal of cheese and tea and boiled mutton, the party reclined about the fire cage on furs and red cushions while they told stories and sang songs. The man of the family played a flute in a strange minor key, and passed Temu a stringed instrument something like a crude violin. Lynn sat listening to the rollicking lilt of "There is a Tavern in the Town," and hardly knew whether or not she was dreaming.

Outside the snow fell softly in fine crystals. Within, lights from the butter lamps flickered on the altar images. The glow from the stove gave a rosy shine to the dark, grease-grimed faces of the natives, and picked out the birch framework of the walls of the tent in lines of black where it laced the white felt of the yurta. Native wine was passed around the circle in honor of the visitors.

The smallest child in the tent, a little girl with gray eyes and light hair, that showed a tendency to curl despite the grease and soil that had accumulated during her few years of life, nodded sleepily against her mother.

"Do you suppose this man is her father?" Lynn asked Temu.

He said unexpectedly, "We'll find out." He turned and spoke to the man who made a laughing answer, waving his hands as he talked.

"He says he doesn't know, but she was caught in his herd. She may grow up to be a forceful woman and rule her household. Though Mongol women have a hard life, they have equality with men."

"I used to think that mixing blood was a dreadful crime," mused Lynn.

He leaned close, fingering the musical instrument that was in his hands. "Now, what do you think?"

"I think it's inevitable and part of the plan. You can't tell me, Temu, that you're pure Mongol."

"You've noticed that?"

"I noticed it the first time I saw you. My people have lived in America since the settlement of Vermont. Perhaps there's Indian blood in me."

He looked up into her face. "What are you driving at, Beautiful?"

"Perhaps I'm not good enough for the Prince if he couldn't find a Mongol girl good enough for him."

"He never tried to find a Mongol girl; he only tried to find you."

The lama who had drunk most of the wine, now asked Temu a special question. The others joined him.

"What's the joke?" she asked.

"They're making sport of me because you wear a sash, the badge of maidenhood. Shall I tell them you're a goddess and I'm but a common man?"

"Tell the lama to begin his prayers," she said shortly.

"It's a good idea."

RE-ELECT CONGRESSMAN FREDERICK C. SMITH REPUBLICAN TICKET

TO THE VOTERS OF THE EIGHTH DISTRICT:

NEVER WITH MY VOTE WILL THE YOUNG MANHOOD OF AMERICA BE SENT TO DIE ON THE BATTLEFIELDS OF EUROPE.

As my record will show I have consistently opposed and voted against every measure which I believed had the possibility of involving our country in another European war.

If re-elected to Congress I shall continue to pursue the same policy.

As in the past I shall continue to vote for every defense measure that I deem necessary to make our shores and borders impregnable against any and all external attack.

But National Defense is something more than the mere voting of huge appropriations.

We are also confronted with a greatly weakened internal economy and a mounting debt that threatens us with national bankruptcy. These problems are grave and pressing and must be considered along with our defense needs.

In view of these facts, I feel it my duty to examine every appropriation measure that may come before Congress and act as my considered judgment and conscience dictate.

SHE NOTICED A DIFFERENCE

when she used Pillsbury's Best

Maybe you will, too

"I Found Pillsbury's Best Gives Me White, Light Baking," says Mrs. H. Kraschnewski of Milwaukee

"I learned this: Pillsbury's Best has a whiteness and lightness that's reflected in the things I make—especially rolls. They're white and light and tender—no more heaviness or 'grayness'!

"Also, with Pillsbury's Best my cakes are fluffy and moist—never dry or hard. After seeing the improvement it made in my baking, I know Pillsbury's Best is best!"

Just WHY does flour make such a difference?

For example, why does one cake come out coarse and uneven in texture, heavy, dry, and "unbaked" looking—and another come out light, even textured, and temptingly golden-brown?

You'd understand if you could see what happens when we test wheat—how one wheat may make much better flour than another. We pay thousands of dollars extra every year for the finest wheats for Pillsbury's Best—then we blend them carefully, mill them, and test the milling every hour, to make sure you get the finest flour for everything you bake.

Rio Grande College Today Installs Eighth President

By The Associated Press

RIO GRANDE, O., Nov. 1—R. [illegible] Pobst, once a pressroom [illegible] of the Cincinnati En- [illegible] be formally inaugu- [illegible] tomorrow as the eighth [illegible] of Rio Grande college.

He worked for the newspaper [illegible] freshman year at the [illegible] of Cincinnati. Later he [illegible] graduated from Denison uni- [illegible] and the Colgate-Rochester [illegible] of divinity.

Mr. Pobst took up his first pas- [illegible] ten years ago.

Rio Grande proclaims itself to be the only college in Ohio de- [illegible] entirely to the self-help [illegible] for students, of which it has about 200. It serves the young men and women in the lower eco- [illegible] levels.

"We have a 'clientele' of stu- [illegible]," Mr. Pobst said, "who just can't afford to attend a larger college or university but they can afford to attend Rio Grande be- [illegible] we permit them to work for [illegible] of their living expenses and college fees."

The school, located in the hills of Gallia county, 13 miles west of Gallipolis, is operated on the prin- ciple of Kentucky's Berea college, and the students work as janitors, farmers, dairymen, clerks in the cafeteria and book store, and as stenographers and bookkeepers.

"Ultimately we hope to be able to take care of every indigent stu- dent in Ohio and West Virginia— maybe of the entire midwest," Mr. Pobst said. Right now, however, the college needs a new girls' dor- mitory, a pasteurizing plant and a bakery.

The principal inaugural address will be delivered by Dr. Bland L. Stradley, university examiner and dean of the college of arts and sciences at Ohio State university.

A FAULTY MEMORY

Editor of The Star: So far during this campaign it has been the role of the opponents of the aristocratic Sir Galahad of the third term to depend on reason, facts, argument and satire for their campaign ammunition, while the camp followers of their self- styled noblest, kindest and best have largely resorted to rotten and frozen eggs, tomatoes, abuse, rabble-rousing, evasion of the is- sues, violence, hard and heavy objects.

Since the good name of the re- spectable Democratic party has by this time been thoroughly smeared with tar from the brushes of its New Deal masters, it would be exceedingly stupid for the oppo- sition to lie down to wallow in the gutter, just for the very dub- lous pleasure of listening to the Voice of the Sewers. So we shall, in these lines dedicated to the correction of a few somewhat shadowed impressions resulting from the marvelous oration deliv- ered recently at Philadelphia by the hypnotic Voice, avoid all sug- gestions that we are correcting falsification of facts, distortions of the truth, prevarications, or even plain lies. We shall dwell only on certain omissions of facts which have a great deal of bearing on the case. To the reasonably well-in- formed, the masterpiece delivered at the City of Brotherly Love sug- gested irresistably the conclusion that the most wonderful of all our presidents has developed the art of forgetfulness to an amaz- ing perfection.

We shall not, of course, waste any time on the pitiful little in- vective delivered by that super- lawyer, Attorney General Jackson. The forgetfulness of the greatest ever was quite serious. He boast- ed that America wears more shoes and eats more butter than in 1929, but forgot to point out that there are about eleven million more per- sons to wear the shoes and eat the butter. He boasted that it was a "falsification of fact" to say that he had not put a single man back to work in private industry, but forgot to point out that what em- ployment gains there are come from the armaments boom built on borrowed money; that not he, but all the people deserve credit for it, and that it is not a true re- covery at all.

He ridiculed the idea that bor- rowing and borrowing forever could ever ruin social security and the people's savings, but forgot to mention that "back in 1932" he had gallivanted furiously up and down the land warning direly of the frightful consequences bound to come if Hoover's small increase in the debt was not stopped at once.

He boasted once again of having "saved" the country "back in 1932" but forgot to mention that he had been largely responsible for the bank panic and that Hoover's sec- retary of the treasury had formu- lated the plan for the bank holi- day.

He boasted of keeping the peo- ple from starving, but forgot to point out that his radical anti- business policies have kept them out of jobs and on relief.

He boasted of the flourishing condition of business, but forgot to point out that "back" in the time of Coolidge there was more capital invested in private business in a single year, by many times, than has been invested during his whole administration.

He boasted of the profits that business is earning, but forgot to mention that after his socialistic taxes and taxes resulting from his extravagances have been de- ducted, there is not enough left to encourage new capital to flow into business.

He boasted of the national in- come being seventy billion, but forgot to add that about one- fourth of it is money that gov- ernment borrows and taxes from one national pocket into the oth- er, and so is not true income; and furthermore, that it is far less than the eighty-one billion of the best boom year, and that we have about twelve million more people now than then, and that according to the average of the past na- tional recoveries, it should be one hundred billion.

He boasted of the safety of the banks, but forgot to mention that Republican Senator Vandenberg was the author of the deposit in- surance act, and that he, Roose- velt, had fought it.

He did not explain, either, what would happen to the people's sav- ings if the national debt blows up and ruins the government's credit.

He waxed greatly indignant over the accusation that he had sold Czechoslovakia down the river over the telephone, but for- got to mention the fact that he had put his blessing on Munich and had taken a great deal of glory as a peacemaker.

He smoked under the collar at the very mention of the thought that he is a war-monger, but for- got to admit the vital truth that a poorly armed nation seriously weakened by a chronic depression, and staggering under mushroom- ing debt, has a rather poor chance to escape trouble with a stab-in- back speechmaker for president.

He forgot a great many other things, but, forgot, most of all, to justify the third term grab for power. That is the kind of forget- fulness that has been destroying the democracies of this world.

MARION MAN WINS GUN IN NATIONWIDE CONTEST

Fred Raab of 369 South Pros- pect street has received word that he has been awarded first prize, a $60 rifle, in a recent contest conducted by a sportsman's maga- zone. The publication's frontis- piece carried reproductions of 22 items of sporting goods, which contestants were to identify. Mr. Raab correctly named each article and the manufacturer. Some 2,600 persons took part and a complete list of winners is to be announced in a succeeding issue. Mr. Raab is a member of staff in the coun- ty engineer's office.

in order to keep their equals in oppression. They will not do so, because to do so is completely idiotic, and Europe is not a con- tinent inhabited by idiots. In or- der to consolidate his new order in Europe Hitler will have to abandon every tenet of Nazism, from the "Volkstaat" to the mas- ter race theory, and Mussolini will have to abandon his Caesarian dream, because there is not room in Europe for both Caesar and Charlemagne at the same time.

Balance of Power Gone

Neither, however, can Great Britain hope to maintain a bal- ance of power on the Continent of Europe or to exercise in the fu- ture the role it played in the Nineteenth century as arbiter of the world. It cannot do so, first, because the English Channel is not wide enough to provide the "moat" of Shakespeare's time against all invasion; it cannot do so, secondly, because in the mod- ern world economic power does not rest with finance and com- merce, but with mass production close to the sources of raw ma- terials.

The great oceanic continent and the great industrial power of the English-peaking world in the Twentieth century is North Amer- ica, with all the facilities for vast mass production, a God-given po- sition between two oceans, and the shortest route between them in the Panama Canal.

The British Isles occupy a most important position at the gateway to the Atlantic from Europe. And the British Isles have this to give to a union: long experience and prestige; a race of the coolest- headed and most courageous peo- ple on this earth; a worldwide fi- nancial and merchandising ex- perience and contacts. In a union between the United States and the British commonwealths the center of power would not be in London but in Washington, but London would nevertheless play an im- mense role.

RULES ON COMMUNISTS

Carnegie Board Honors Heroes; Won't Single Out the Greatest of Them All

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1—Who is the nation's "hero of heroes?"

The Carnegie Hero Fund com- mission three times each year awards medals to those who have risked or given their lives for others, but it declines to single out any one act as the most he- roic. That, the commission says, is "a matter of opinion."

This body, holding a meeting here today to make further se- lections, has granted 3,155 awards in the past 36 years.

Only 19 gold medals have been awarded by the Carnegie com- mission. There have been 553 sil- ver awards and 2,583 of bronze.

Picking Honors Since 1904

The commission has been doing this since 1904, when a $5,000,- 000 fund was set up for that pur- pose by Andrew Carnegie, the Scottish-born steelmaker who felt that mankind applauds deeds of sacrifice but forgets to care for those who perform them.

Through the years the largest monetary award to an individ- ual, $6,500, and a gold medal went to Mark Casto, master of the fishing schooner Alberta, for his rescue of 52 persons from the steamer Cherokee off At- lantic City, N. J., Jan. 14, 1906.

There have been many thrill- ing rescues from drowning, wa- ter accidents being the most com- mon Carnegie cases. Second in number to those are train res- cues—persons being knocked off of the paths of approaching trains just in the nick of time. Fire, flood and mine rescues are far fewer.

The old movie thrillers used to depict an engineer climbing out a window of his speeding loco- motive to reach down from the cow-catcher and whisk up to safety a child playing on the railroad tracks. That story was drawn from the annals of truth, not fiction. Such a rescue has occurred no less than three times in Carnegie hero history.

One man won a silver medal for saving William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York in 1910, from a would-be assassin. Gaynor was shot once in the head before Wil- liam H. Edwards threw himself on the assailant. Edwards was shot in the struggle, but he and the mayor recovered.

Rescues from the paths of runaway horses were an ordi- nary affair in the pre-automobile era.

Odd rescues include a farmer using a pen-knife to defend a man from goring by an enraged bull. A woman won a silver medal by sucking venom from a rattlesnake bite on the arm of a youth. A man received a bronze decoration for helping subdue a jailbreak.

Nine special awards have been made on the heels of disasters, largely by flood and mine accidents. The biggest, $54,000, went to suffers of the California earthquake and San Francisco fire in 1906.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Another chapter in the weekly football guessing contest:

Tennessee - Louisiana State: Can't look beyond Tennessee.

Kentucky - Alabama: Taking Alabama, but not too happily.

Georgia - Auburn: The loss of Rufus Deal will hurt Auburn and Georgia seems to be making excellent progress. Still, Aburn.

Boston College - Manhattan: Adds up to Boston College.

Duquesne - Marquette: Duquesne.

The Uptowners, who had cinched their crown last week, racked up a touchdown in each period. Quarterback Daly scored three times, ripping off 10 yards to cap a 50-yard first quarter field drive and tearing off touchdown jaunts of 45 and 30 yards. Louck intercepted a Vernon pass and ran 25 yards for Central's fourth tally.

Vernon's lone score, coming late in the closing period, was the result of a successful aerial barrage. The scoring play began 25 yards out, Kilbourne hurling the pigskin to Miley.

Vitt Gets Bids—

Oscar Reports Minor League Job Offers.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1—Oscar Vitt, tossed out on his ear after managing the Cleveland Indians into one second place and two third place finishes, already has received two offers to pilot minor league clubs. He isn't much concerned whether he remains in the game.

Of the offers, which he declined to amplify, Vitt said:

"I came up from the minors and I'll go back to them—if the price is right," Oscar and his big smile probably will be present at the major leagues meeting in December. Despite his Cleveland baseball demise, he has received word some of the other club owners think highly of his capabilities.

SPORTS THE MARION STAR

Only 18 Pounds Bar Conn from $1,000,000

So Thinks Billy, Seeking To Add Weight for Crack at Joe Louis.

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK—No woman in the world, be she a Hollywood oomph artist, a Broadway stage star or an ordinary housewife, takes more interest in her weight than Billy Conn, the light heavyweight champion, takes in his.

Billy isn't interested in reducing; he wants to add a few pounds; and every lost ounce is a nightmare to him.

He has every reason to worry about his weight. You would worry, too, if you believed, as he does, that a mere 18 pounds was preventing you from winning the heavyweight title and the million or more that goes with it.

JOE LOUIS

His lack of poundage may stop Billy from getting even a crack at Joe Louis' title, and such a bout would mean at least $100,000 for Billy even if he lost.

Billy has set 190 pounds as his goal, and he has tried desperately to reach that figure for the last two years. He eats everything and as often as possible. Starches and fats are his dish. He shovels them in faithfully, whether he likes them or not, hoping that the scales will show a few extra ounces on his frame. But the scales never lie; they show him up for just what the is—a normal light heavyweight.

The weight question has become an obsession with him. Before every fight he blandly announces that he has put on weight and that he'll scale well over 180 pounds. Then he steps on the scales the day of the fight and the beam balances nicely at 172 pounds or three pounds even below the light heavyweight limit.

That was the procedure before his recent fight with Al McCoy in Boston. Billy won but he won at 172 pounds, not 190, nor even 180.

Billy is forever citing the cases of Jim Braddock and Gene Tunney who grew from light heavyweights into real heavyweights. But Billy either can't or won't realize that both Jim and Gene were taller, broader and what is more important, bigger-boned than he is. They needed only to add the normal poundage that comes with maturity to become the heavyweights they are today. Billy has small bones; he is not broad-shouldered and he is not over six feet tall.

Conn

Braddock

Many experts believe that if Conn weighed a normal 190 pounds he could whip Joe Louis. But few give Billy at 172 pounds any chance against the Brown Bomber, especially since Billy in every fight has shown, when hurt, a keen desire to stand and slug toe to toe. And it takes a lot of imagination to envisage anybody, especially a light heavyweight, standing toe to toe with Louis and standing very long.

Of couse, Billy feels confident that he can lick Louis regardless of weight. He doesn't admit for a moment that the 30 pounds advantage Louis would have would make any difference, and he points to his success against other bigger and slower heavyweights.

23 GAMES ON OHIO'S WEEK-END SCHEDULE

O. S. U.-Indiana Not Only One Drawing in Fans.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1—Ohio State battles Indiana Saturday afternoon before 47,000 fans in a not-too-important Western Conference grid game, each being out of the championship running.

The contest headlines a 23-game program involving Buckeye college squads, but it doesn't monopolize the spotlight's glare. Holding heavy interest is the Oberlin - Wittenberg contest at Springfield, in which either the Yeomen or the Lutherans (or both) must drop from the unbeaten-untied list.

Wittenberg will be bidding for its fourth straight Ohio Conference win, while Oberlin is making its first start against an Ohio foe after four conquests over out-of-state opponents.

Other top-notch games include Kent State at Bowling Green, and John Carroll at Toledo in the Ohio loop, and non-league engagements between Carnegie Tech and Cincinnati, Lincoln at Wilberforce, Ohio Wesleyan at Xavier, and Boston university at Western Reserve.

Also on the slate are: Otterbein at Marietta, Youngstown at Akron, Kenyon at Rochester, Grand Rapids at De Sales, Defiance at Manchester, Hiram at Mount Union, Bethany at Heidelberg, Ashland at Bluffton, Findlay at Ithaca, Ohio Northern at Muskingum, Valparaiso at Capital, Transylvania at Dayton, and Baldwin Wallace at Case.

At Weston, W. Va., last night, little Rio Grande college continued scoreless for the season in dropping its fifth straight game to Salem college, 38 to 0.

Bo McMillin brings his "pore little boys" from Indiana over to play Ohio State's defeated Bucks Saturday, and 47,000 fans are billed to sit in on a game that means nothing at all. Between 'em the two teams have won three of nine starts this year.

It looks from here as if the "pore little boys" have grown up. The Indiana starting lineup will average 197 pounds over all, with a 202 mark for the line and 188 for the backs. Seven of the 11 soar over the six-foot mark, the average being six feet one-half inch.

Jim Renick, the Buck's publicity man, decided heroic measures were required to pull the Ohioans out of their losing streak, so he took matters into his own hands. "I hate to do it," with winter coming on, but we've got to do something to stop these defeats. I'm going to get my hair cut," Renick declared. (And he did it, too.)

Note to College Coaches: If you will be needing a fullback for 1942, don't overlook Charley (Moose) Kertel, 205-pound line-crashing senior on the unbeaten-untied Carrollton team. In winning seven straight, the team has scored 151 points, with "The Moose" getting 104 of them on 16 touchdowns and eight extra points. He scored four touchdowns in one game, and three in another pair.

Ohio Needs Two Strong Senators

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT'S rise to eminence after succeeding Robert J. Bulkley in 1930 restored some of Ohio's lost prestige in legislative leadership. This year, voters have another chance to serve the state.

A successor is to be chosen for Vic Donahey's senate seat. Mr. Donahey won the seat as an accommodation to his party when it needed him on the ticket in 1934. He never really wanted it. He has served out his time and is retiring.

Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland and John McSweeney of Wooster are candidates to succeed him. Mayor Burton's party has the stronger claim to the seat. The Democratic party forfeited its claim to Democratic succession by electing a man who didn't want the job and was inactive when he got it.

Mayor Burton also seems better qualified than Mr. McSweeney to help Sen. Taft make Ohio mean something in the upper house. The mayor's political star is ascending. He is one of his party's ablest leaders, a man who has served Ohio's largest city with distinction.

A further increase of competent Republican leadership is essential in both houses of congress. If President Roosevelt should happen to be elected to a third term, continuation of two-party government would depend entirely on the strength of the minority in congress.

Ohio's congressional bloc now contains 15 Republicans and nine Democrats. The Republican representation should be increased, if possible, maintained at all costs. That means for Republican voters in this district that besides voting for George H. Bender and L. L. Marshall, Republican candidates for congressmen-at-large, they should mark their ballot for Frederick C. Smith, Republican candidate in this district.

V—Background

This is another in a series of editorials summing up the qualifications of Wendell L. Willkie to be President of the United States.

IT is no accident that a humble beginning—the log cabin birthplace—is a sound political asset for presidential candidates. Voters have a kindred feeling for political figures whose experiences have been like their own. Few Americans were born with a silver spoon in their mouth.

Wendell Willkie's opportunities to find out what makes America tick have been infinitely greater than those of President Roosevelt. He has performed such widely varied tasks as selling newspapers, driving a bakery wagon, spieling for a tent show, hawhiding on a threshing crew, moving buildings, working in a steel mill, wrestling sugar cane in Puerto Rico, practicing as a trial lawyer, and managing the affairs of a huge public utilities company—and incidentally bringing the affairs out of the red into the black.

Business management has been one phase of his career. He has a remarkable knack for adjusting himself to his surroundings, and one of his many sets of surroundings happened to be business. He qualified for his position as president of Commonwealth & Southern Corp. as a member of its legal staff. He qualified for that job as a trial lawyer in Ohio. He became a good trial lawyer by cramming his head with knowledge about law and his fellowmen. Wendell Willkie is a success story in person; he has been offered as much as $250,000 a year by companies which needed executive talent of his caliber.

He has shown the same knack of adjustment to his surroundings in politics. He would bring to the biggest job in the United States—the presidency—the same qualities which made him successful in law and business. He has experience, coupled with imagination. He has a mind well stocked with information, but he is not a theorist. He understands the problem of business men, but he has offended them by understanding their shortcomings too. He knows the value of money because he has had a little and a lot—and has been salting down his surplus in Indiana farms.

New Dealers would like to make it appear that there is an unwritten law against electing a successful man to the presidency. Yet, in every one of their numerous "emergencies" they have called business men to the rescue. When a national defense emergency arose, they called on business men again, meanwhile keeping them under tight political control. Election of Wendell L. Willkie would introduce to the White House the same genius for getting things done which William S. Knudsen has brought to the national defense commission.

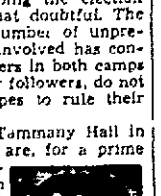
News Behind the News

Flood of Unpredictable Factors Keep Campaign Trend in Dark.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—No wonder the polls have been hedging by keeping the election outcome somewhat doubtful. The unprecedented number of unpredictable factors involved has confused many leaders in both camps who, unlike their followers, do not permit their hopes to rule their judgment.

Workings of Tammany Hall in vital New York are, for a prime instance, unfathomable even to those in that gang. It can be said definitely the only orders that had been passed down by the middle of the week urged the workers to go for the state ticket. Not a word was said about Roosevelt. While the leader, Christy Flannigan, sat on the Madison Square Garden platform for Mr. Roosevelt's speech, it is rather well understood within the outfit that the leaders are against the third term. They hold that they had been unable to appease the President, so there can be no benefit in helping him.



Paul Mallon

The regulars in the Bronx and Brooklyn seem to be working double time in the White House interests, but their activity is not matched by all Democratic state organizations out in the country.

Big "If"

A Democratic chieftain has said that Mr. Roosevelt will win by a landslide if he can get everyone who is supposed to be for him to vote for him on election day.

That "if" gets bigger the deeper you pry into the prospects. An intimate loyal newspaper friend of a certain Democratic senator from the west who has made a statement for Roosevelt is authority for a warning that the senator will vote the other way when he gets into the ballot stall and the curtain is closed. (If you want to guess his identity, eliminate Senator Burke of Nebraska for he is not the man.)

Lewis Speech

A great imponderable also is the voting effect of the John Lewis break from Mr. Roosevelt. Those who have looked over the favorable telegrams Lewis has received have been impressed, although these are not all from labor leaders. Lewis himself is very well pleased. Since last Friday he refers to the New Deal as "the opposition." He is proud of his speech, says it had "impact."

Kennedy Speech

Few New Dealers measured the effect of the Kennedy speech in tons of ballots. The other stumping ambassadors were careful to avoid the mistake of making definite commitments to Roosevelt by name. Also the ambassador to London came in late to the campaign show and strongly asserted that the only crisis in which the United States is involved is a crisis of production—the necessity of arming in time. He founded his whole argument on that assumption. What troubled the New Dealers is the fact that the Republicans have built up the same assumption as their primary reason for electing a business man.

Letters from Mothers

Draft headquarters naturally has kept quiet about it, but a large volume of letters was received before the draft drawing from mothers of sons within the age limits, setting forth political arguments against the President. Many a Democratic authority has the feeling that the President switched far too late from the war-crisis campaign motif which was used at the outset to justify the third term. Willkie's rise they attribute mainly to that issue. Whether the new peace motif will be effective in rallying such votes back before Tuesday cannot be answered before then.

Guessing

A heavy majority of political newsmen around town still thinks Roosevelt will win. In a dollar pool at the state department press room, Roosevelt's expected electoral vote averaged 376. On the other hand private business services here are this year, for the first time in their history, frankly advising their clients the outcome cannot be guessed with any reasonable degree of assurance.

Getting Out The Vote

All these incalculables sift down to the probability that the election may go to the side most efficiently organized to get its voters to the polls and voted on election day.

Republicans, for the first time in 12 years have youthful and enthrused groups of legmen and women to see that their full vote is cast. Democratic campaign emphasis, however, has largely leaned on grand strategy rather than ringing doorbells.

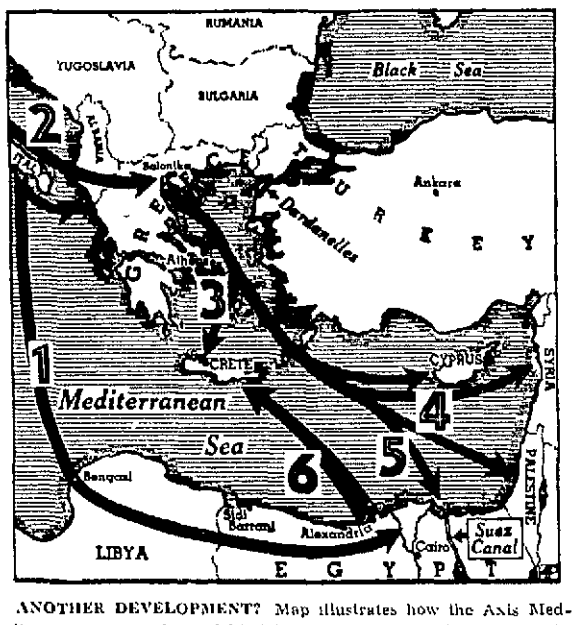
The Attack on Greece

Some Information About Its Double Purpose.



ANOTHER DEVELOPMENT? Map illustrates how the Axis Mediterranean campaign might take on aspects of the new well-known German envelopment idea. The Italian attack on Egypt (1) and the thrust into Greece (2) might be followed by (3), (4), and (5), after the British had been drawn into the trap (6).

By MORGAN BEATTY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 — The Italian attack on Greece has the double purpose of (1) opening the battle of the Mediterranean and (2) walling off Russia from the war once again.

That's the opinion of experts here.

Greece was chosen as the curtain raiser for the battle of the Mediterranean for four reasons:

1. Direct Italian thrusts at Egypt thus far have failed to loosen the British grip on the Suez gateway. (Hitler was at Mussolini's side when the newest plan was launched.)

2. The struggle for Greece diverts British strength from both Gibraltar and Suez, making easier a German sally at Gibraltar and a continuing Italian drive at Egypt and the Suez. That's an adaption of the familiar German plan, to dart at the enemy's center then envelop him.

3. If the Greeks are worsted, the Germans and Italians can button up the last button on the Balkans—the Salonika gateway. That's the only gap left open for a future British effort to rescue the Balkans from the Axis.

4. A victorious Italy might acquire hundreds of Aegean islands which, up to now, have been ideal bases of operations for the British East Mediterranean fleet. These islands would be stepping stones to Suez for the Italian fleet. (And so would be Syria, by the way, if France agrees to let the Axis use her colonies as bases.)

POSSIBLY more significant, however, than all these purely strategic reasons for the attack on Greece, is what appears to be the Axis plan to keep Russia out of the war.

Before the war, Germany offered Russia better trade arrangements than the British, in return for non-aggression. Russia broke off with Britain, signed with Germany.

Germany attacked and subdued Poland, after first guaranteeing Russia a generous slice of the spoils.

Germany occupied or dominated Norway, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, France and Spain. Russia kept hands off. The Germans kept hands off while Russia dominated or occupied, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Bessarabia, Bukovina. Germany won 400,000 square miles, 75,000,000 people. Russia got 165,000 square miles, 22,000,000 people.

Then came Rumania. All Russia got out of German occupation there was an agreement to share control of the strategic mouth of the Danube.

NOW, Greece. Has Germany placated Russia again, by agreeing to let her continue to dominate the Dardanelles? If the Germans and Italians win the Mediterranean, it'll be a poor trade for Russia. The ocean outside the Dardanelles window will be under Axis control.

Will the Germans and Italians succeed in the end?

The best informed expert I know tells me the answer lies in Russia's reaction to the Axis thrust into Greece. If Russia thinks the Axis can wrest control of the Mediterranean away from the British, expect a signal from Moscow to Turkey to go to the aid of the Greeks.

If Russia thinks the British are strong enough to parry the blow, expect Russia to hold Turkey back and watch the battle of the Mediterranean from a grandstand seat.

On The Record

Union of English-Speaking Peoples and Cessation of Hostilities Proposed.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

DURING this campaign I have heard nothing important except talk of war and promises of peace. The fear of war has been whipped up into a panic, and the promise of peace has been handed out by both candidates. Neither of them, however, has offered any suggestion as to how peace is to be achieved.

Dorothy Thompson

My impression is that, even though Mr. Willkie does not agree with them, there are, opposing the President, a number of influential people who think that the best way to get peace is to prepare to accept and collaborate with the "dominant power" in Europe; and my impression is that the program of the administration is to go on aiding Britain, hoping that she will help break the dominant power with American workers and machinery.

Neither of these policies seems to me to be realistic. A realistic policy would look at things as they are and try to find the ways out.

This war could stop tomorrow. It could stop tomorrow and begin a new era, in which the democratic English-speaking world would still hold the best position. There is nothing whatever to stop this happening except limited imaginations and timidity — not physical timidity but intellectual timidity and unwillingness to think boldly in terms of world politics instead of leaving all the imagination and audacity to the other side.

Union of Peoples

The way to end this war is to perfect a union of the English speaking peoples of the world—of the United States and all the free commonwealths, leaving it to the rest of the British Empire to decide whether they want to stay with us or not. We should then offer to the European Axis powers an immediate cessation of hostilities.

Great Britain cannot afford to make peace as long at 42,000,000 people in the British Isles may be faced with a united Continent of Europe under Germany. She cannot afford to do so because she is too exposed and too weak. A British Isles, however, as an integrated part of a worldwide commonwealth of the English-speaking peoples—who, without any of the Empire, amount to 200,000,000 people — with the whole of North America, with the Pacific continents of Australia and New Zealand and with the Union of South Africa, would remain the greatest oceanic power and the greatest world power and could afford to leave the European continent to Hitler and his "little confederate," Mussolini.

If this seems cold-hearted to the friends of the free states and the enemies of Fascism, then, let it be predicted, this would shortly mean the end of both Hitler and Mussolini. These men, alone or united, cannot, in the long run, govern Europe according to their concepts of the master race or the New Roman Empire or what have you. Europe does not consist of barbaric tribes, to be conquered by a modern Caesar; it consists of highly civilized peoples with national cultures, and, outside of the Balkans, a universally high standard of living.

The German and Italian peoples, in the long run, will not starve and overwork themselves

U. S. Adjutant General Clears All Questions About Band's Use of Flag

Display of Old Glory in Band Processions to Grid Games Called Proper.

... High school's band is correct in having the ...pes of the American ...ed and flying at its ... marches in night ...

...ement, on authority of ...nt general of the Unit... and H. L. Chaillaux, ... of the national Ameri... commission of the Amer... Legion was made today by ... officials following repeat... from residents of the ... and patrons of the football ... the Harding stadium ... seen the band march... to the stadium.

... E. Huffman, who has ... the band into one of ... in the state, was dis... by the criticism. He wrote ... adjutant general and was as... that the band's use of the flag ... correct. Carrying his ... further, he got in touch ... local American Legion of... ficials and was referred to W. E. Orcutt, Americanism chairman of Bud-McGinnis Post No 162 of Marion.

Here's the Answer

In response to direct question, "Is it proper for the flag to be unfurled at a night football game when it is used at the head of the band?" Mr Chaillaux wrote.

"Yes. The provisoin of the Flag Code which prohibits the display of the flag at night applies to the displaying of the flag on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open. It does not apply to the carrying of flags."

Regarding the question, "Is it ever proper to fly the flag at night from a stationary flagpole, either with or without a searchlight or other light turned on it" Mr Chaillaux wrote:

"As a regular thing it would not be considered proper. However, if a flag were being so flown on a particular occasion for the purpose of producing a patriotic effect, in no way connected with advertising, it would be considered proper."

The latest criticism was that a visiting band, carrying its flag sheathed, was correct, and that the Harding band, with its flag flying free was all wrong.

Always Has Color Guard

On authority, the Harding band was entirely correct and the visiting band was wrong in that it afforded no color guard for its American flag. The Harding band's flag always is accorded such a guard.

While inquiring about the matter of carrying the flag in the parade, Mr. Orcutt also asked for information regarding the proper public salute to the flag and the correct public salute when the national anthem is played.

Here is what the national American Legion officer replied:

"During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the flag passes.

"When the National Anthem is played and the flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the flag is displayed, the regular 'Salute to the Flag' should be given.

"'The Star Spangled Banner' is now the national anthem of the United States of America. It was made such by Act of Congress, March 3, 1931."

C.I.O. IN OHIO SPLITS ON VOTE

One Leader Comes Out for Willkie as Secretary Gives Support to Roosevelt.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1 — Two leaders of the Ohio Congress of Industrial Organizations today urged its membership to support opposing candidates for president.

Edward T. Cheyfitz, vice president of the Ohio C.I.O. and executive secretary of the National Association of Die Casting Workers, asked labor to support Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee and the announced choice of John L. Lewis, C.I.O. president.

Previously, Ted F. Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio C.I.O., advocated the reelection of President Roosevelt as "one way to help strengthen and advance your union."

"John L. Lewis has reviewed labor's case against the present administration so clearly that no sincere, organized worker can deny it," Cheyfitz said in a statement released by Republican state headquarters.

Prefers Lewis

"It is my belief that C.I.O., to a great extent, will rise or fall with John L. Lewis," he continued. "Therefore, when it comes to choosing between Roosevelt and Lewis—I take Lewis."

Cheyfitz emphasized that he spoke as an individual and "not in the interests of any political party, but in the interests of maintaining and advancing our great C.I.O. movement."

The state gubernatorial campaign took on added interest with the accusation by J. Freer Bittinger, Democratic state chairman, that Republican Gov. Bricker was engaging "in the most reckless campaign of political spending the state of Ohio has ever seen."

Bittinger cited "the large and expensive billboard" near Columbus as an example of Bricker's "personal spending." Earlier in the week Bricker's opponent for reelection, former Gov. Davey charged that the governor's campaign would cost a million dollars.

Davey in Cleveland

Davey campaigned yesterday in Cleveland, accusing newspaper editors there of "covering up" for Governor Bricker because of "the enormous amount of liquor advertising" their papers received.

He named Paul Bellamy, editor, and Ralph J. Donaldson, political reporter, both of the Plain Dealer, and Louis B. Seltzer, editor of the Press.

Bricker, also attending Cleveland political rallies, quoted five prominent Democrats — James Metzenbaum, W. B. Gongwer, Harold G. Mosier, Stephen M. Young, and Charles Sawyer—as criticizing Davey in various ways and added that "signals will be called from the state house—not from some Columbus hotel suite—as long as I am governor."

State Democratic headquarters announced that the Mahoning county Italian-American federation, representing Italian-American Citizens' clubs, had endorsed Davey for governor.

ROOSEVELT

Col. E. W. Starling, chief of the White House secret service staff, and Ray T. Miller, Cuyahoga county Democratic chairman, completed arrangements today for the President's program.

Public auditorium will be thrown open at 6:45 p. m. and the speaking will start at 7:30 p. m., although Mr. Roosevelt will not arrive until 8:50 p. m. His national radio broadcast is scheduled for 9 to 10 p. m.

Former Gov. Davey, candidate for a third gubernatorial term, and John McSweeney, candidate for U. S. senator, will be presented to the audience, as will other state candidates, Miller announced.

President Roosevelt's special train is scheduled to arrive at the Cleveland union terminal on the public square at 7:15 p. m. He will remain aboard until 8:20 p. m.

A special ramp will be constructed to bring him from the underground tracks to the main concourse of the terminal. His automobile will leave at 8:30 p. m.

The official caravan will travel east on Superior avenue through the public square to East Third street and thence through the mall to the public auditorium.

The President's automobile will be driven onto a baggage ramp and directly onto the stage of the little theater in the auditorium.

His speech will be transmitted through loud speakers in the public square. After the main address, Mr. Roosevelt will speak again briefly from his automobile to overflow crowds in the mall.

Then the party will go directly to the train and depart at 10:30 p. m. Mr. Roosevelt plans to go from here to his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., unless world conditions require his return to Washington at once.

Chairman Miller said platform seats would be reserved for candidates for office and seats for precinct committeemen in the music hall. All others are open to the public.

WALLACE ON OHIO FARM AREA TOUR

Vice Presidential Candidate Visits 8 Counties Today.

By The Associated Press

WITH WALLACE TOURING EASTERN OHIO, Nov. 1—Henry A. Wallace, visiting eastern Ohio farm sections, declared at New Philadelphia today that during the past four years of the New Deal administration profits of business compared favorably with 1928.

"There has been lots of talk about the administration causing class hatreds and failing to cooperate with business," the Democratic vice-presidential nominee told a Democratic breakfast audience in First Reformed church.

"Profits of business the last four years have averaged about the same as 1928—not as high as 1929, when collapse was just around the corner. We have increased employment by 9,000,000. The record of 1933-40 compares extraordinarily favorably with 1921-28."

Wallace reiterated that President Roosevelt was a "man of peace" and that the selective service program was designed entirely to show aggressor nations that the United States was prepared to defend the Monroe doctrine.

Wallace was introduced by Harry Caton, secretary of the national grange, who said that agriculture under the Roosevelt administration was receiving today twice what it did in the early 30's.

DRAFT

forms to add to their already imposing list.

Among the latest supplies is a minute book in which the boards record the notes of their meetings. Strange to the board members is the requirement that they note down the time the members arrive at the meeting and the time they leave.

Apparently the government is "not paying the members by the hour." The board officials receive no pay whatsoever for their work.

Master Lists Printed

The boards also are still awaiting the official master lists of draft lottery numbers drawn at Washington, the last copies of which rolled off the presses at the government printing office early today.

Copies were rushed into the mail for the draft boards in nearby states. The Associated Press reported.

The "master lists" for inland and western states had long since been on their way by train and plane, as selective service headquarters in Washington concentrated on speedy distribution so that local boards would have their lists by the start of next week.

Until the lists are in the hands of the nation's 6,175 local boards, those boards can not get to work on the mailing of questionnaires and the classification of the first selective service eligibles for a year's military training. The questionnaires will be sent to registrants in the order their numbers were drawn in Tuesday's lottery, and the information developed by the questionnaires is the initial basis for determining whether a registrant will be called for duty or deferred.

Although most of the first selective service quota of 30,000 is expected to be filled by volunteers who prefer to take training immediately instead of waiting for their turns on the draft list, they must go through the questionnaire and classification processes before being accepted for service and inducted into the army.

Nine Draft Inspectors Named for Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1—Appointment by the President of nine civilian selective service inspectors—one for each of the nine appellate districts—was announced today by Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, state selective service director.

Light also announced that Major Harold L. Hays, superintendent of the boys industrial school at Lancaster, had been designated chief inspector with the salary of his military rank. The salary of the inspectors is $3,000 a year.

The inspectors are Harmon E. Zepernick of Columbus, Victor C. Reese of North Ridgeville, Cuyahoga county; Edward S. Nees, of Columbus, Arthur C. Leedle of Springfield, Robert R. Shaw of Columbus, Joseph Haberthear Jr. of Cincinnati, Harry James Reese of Toledo, William R. Wilson of Urbana and George Leonard Baker of East Cleveland.

They reported to state draft headquarters today for five days of schooling before entering on their duties of keeping things moving in the proper manner at the various local selective service boards.

NOTABLES PRESENT AS NATION'S DRAFT LOTTERY BEGINS

In this impressive setting, the nation held its first peacetime draft lottery with President Roosevelt speaking and Secretary of War Stimson drawing the first number. When this picture was made President Roosevelt was speaking from the rostrum just to the left of the bowl containing the 9,000 capsules. No. 158 was the first number drawn.

ROOSEVELT ACCUSED BY FASCIST EDITOR

Gayda Says President Starts Offensive Against Axis.

By The Associated Press

ROME, Nov. 1—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, accused President Roosevelt today of initiating an offensive against the axis and held him and his supporters responsible for creation of an "ideological political conflict which is skidding toward belligerency between the United States and the axis."

The editor of Il Giornale D'Italia, who often reflects official Fascist opinion, said he was answering a recent speech of United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Hull's speech, he said, "pretended again to change the elementary truth of the facts, inventing an axis menace to America." He invited "these bellicose Americans" to furnish "one single, concrete, documented proof" of this menace.

He repeated, however, that Italy was not interested in the outcome of the United States' presidential election.

(Secretary Hull, speaking last Saturday night over a nationwide hook-up, described the rulers of Germany, Italy and Japan as "would-be conquerors" engaged in a relentless attempt to reduce mankind to "a master-and-slave relationship among nations and individuals, maintained by brute force."

(They "adhere to no geographic lines . . . On their programs of invasion" and "there can be nothing more dangerous for our nation than for us to assume that the avalanche of conquest could under no circumstances reach any vital portion of this hemisphere," Hull asserted.)

TURKEY

cate from what direction the raids were launched.

(Long range British bombers have flown all the way from England on a number of occasions to attack industrial cities in northern Italy. Reports from various sources that British forces have been landed recently on Greek islands, however, raised the possibility that the Naples raiders may have operated from the new bases in the Mediterranean.)

Attack In Egypt

On the Greek warfront, meanwhile, Italian forces were reported to have reached a highway junction at Kalibaki.

In Egypt motorized Italian columns were said to have attacked British forces and pursued them beyond Alam El Samn, 25 miles east of Sidi Barrani.

Italian warplanes, the high command said, "unleashed violent attacks" on British positions in North Africa, during which they engaged in a "bitter combat" with British fighters.

Seventeen British planes were reported shot down.

Belgrade dispatches said the Italians were hammering at Greek positions in Pisoderia pass, at the northeast end of the Albanian frontier.

The Fascist columns, supported by heavy artillery and warplanes, apparently had as their first objective the Greek city of Phlorina, 30 miles distant, and thence to the key Aegean port of Salonika which might be used as the base for a drive to the Turkish Dardanelles.

Unconfirmed Greek reports circulated in Belgrade that British warplanes, accompanied by a few of Greece's tiny air force, had bombed Tirana, capital of the Italian "puppet state" of Albania.

The British fleet was said to have completed sowing a network of mines around Salonika and other Grecian harbors.

Germans Active

Reports of increasing German military activity in Rumania stirred anxiety in Bulgaria that Adolf Hitler might be planning a thrust at eastern Greece from Rumanian bases despite expressions of confidence in Berlin that the Italian-Greek conflict would be "localized."

German troops would have to pass through Bulgaria to reach Greece from Rumania. The Bulgarian government discounted rumors that such a move was likely "within 10 days" but the rumors persisted.

Bulgaria herself maintained a strictly hands-off policy, refraining even from taking advantage of Greece's plight by pressing long-standing territorial claims against her neighbor.

Some light on Turkey's attitude—the big questionmark in the Balkan picture—was expected to result during the day from an address by President Ismet Inonu before the opening session of the Turkish national assembly.

Italian war correspondents said Fascist troops had penetrated Greece from the sea as well as from Albania.

Aristides Demetratos, general secretary o fthe Greek National Labor Confederation, appealed to workers throughout the world to come to his country's aid by boycotting Italian goods and demanding a ban on exports to Italy.

Willkie Attacks Foreign Policy

as an "obstruction," he said in a prepared speech.

"Our unwritten law against granting a third term to any president is not even mentioned by the third-term candidate. He doesn't even attempt to justify his violation of it."

The Republican presidential nominee, near the end of his nationwide campaign tour, continued:

"We are sick of the kind of politics that refuses our craving for clean, hard, open debate, the kind of politics that seeks to win a third term by hiding behind the bushes of two terms. We are sick of the kind of one-man government that calls an ambassador of the United States 'my ambassador.' It used to be 'my friends.' Now it is 'my ambassador.' Pretty soon it will be 'my generals.' Then it will be 'my people.' But there is one thing that will be perfectly clear after Nov. 5.

"It isn't his White House. It's the people's White House."

Willkie asked that if Joseph P. Kennedy was "the ambassador of the third-term candidate, who is our ambassador to Great Britain?"

"We, the people, want an ambassador to Great Britain who is on the job," he said. "And, incidentally, if we had one, he would not be over here on order, to help with a dying political campaign."

Points To Advisers

Willkie asked voters to consider President Roosevelt's appointees and associates and to "take into account what they believe in."

"They are the secret ballot behind the ballot that the third-term candidate offers to the country," he declared.

He quoted Adolph Berle, assistant secretary of state, as saying he resigned from the National Lawyers' Guild because its management was not "prepared to take any stand that conflicts with the Communist party."

"Mr. Berle is certainly not a conservative. Yet to him the National Lawyers' Guild is a Communist organization," the nominee said.

"What then shall we say of the hundred odd officeholders in the present administration who belong to the National Lawyers' Guild and have not resigned? These are the men behind the ballot, these are the invisible ballot that the third-term candidate represents."

Saying that "we are living in the machine age—the industrial age," Willkie expressed the opinion that European peoples had believed "we can not master the machines" and thus had turned to the state for control of both men and machines.

"In the United States," he added, "we can become the masters of our machines. From our industrial age we can create a new world that we could scarcely recognize today, but we would recognize the citizens of that world, because they will be free citizens."

Willkie said he was speaking tonight about "faith in America," and added that he visualized a country where Washington representatives "believe in America."

"People who do not believe in America are entitled to their opinions," he continued, "but they are not entitled to govern us, and under our administration they will be dismissed."

Speaking in the Camden convention hall, Willkie faced a crowd which filled all 10,000 seats. There also was a throng outside, listening to his address over loud speakers.

The candidate was greeted by applause, cheers and whistles when he walked to the rostrum. He frequently was interrupted by applause.

Adding to his prepared text, Willkie asked in connection with his argument against a third term:

"Mr. Third Term Candidate, will you please tell the American people why you believe you should be permitted to violate the sacred principle of free government?"

Then, after finishing his prepared talk, Willkie said he had been told that "they (the administration supporters) passed the word around among the WPA workers if they do not vote for the New Deal, they will lose their jobs."

"When you go into the voting booth," he added, "you are the sovereign of the world."

The nominee asserted that he was leading "a cause so sacred that if we do not win, liberty may pass from this world.

"We must win, we are going to win," he shouted.

Earlier, aboard his train enroute to Camden, N. J., Willkie declared that President Roosevelt is "playing cheap politics with international affairs and the liberties of the people."

"My Ambassador"

Speaking at a dairy farm near Plainsboro, N. J., the Republican presidential nominee renewed his criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's reference to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy as "my ambassador" and then said the President believed: "We make them, we break them, we raise them to high levels and then take them down."

Only one American ambassador in four major European countries, Willkie asserted, "is on the job tonight."

Willkie asserted still earlier that President Roosevelt "is beating the hustings like a candidate for representative" and said the chief executive's argument "is like the boo of a paid heckler, which affects nobody."

Nearing the end of his campaign with a series of speeches in Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Republican presidential nominee declared at Chester, Pa., that Mr. Roosevelt originally had sought to create the impression that he was being drafted for the presidency. Saying that military inspections trips "made that look a little damp," Willkie continued.

"How he is beating the hustings like a candidate for representative talking about local issues, not national issues.

"But don't be disturbed by the argument. There is no argument to it. It is like the boo of a paid heckler, which affects nobody."

Louis Scores Kayo Over Hecklers at Republican Rally

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, was booed at a Republican political rally in the heart of Harlem last night, but he took it like a champ.

"You boys," said the imperturbable Brown Bomber, "can boo 'til you get blue in the face . . . .but I'll just keep on talking."

Looking down at his hecklers, he declared, "I'm used to boos—and I win any way."

This brought a wave of cheers.

He was up there to urge the election of Wendell L. Willkie. Police estimated 3,500 to 4,000 Negroes jammed into a ballroom to hear him, and that 3,000 to 4,000 waited outside.

"If Mr. Willkie is elected," said Louis, "he has promised in writing to put over the anti-lynching bill. Roosevelt has been in office for eight years and done nothing about that. The people in the north don't know how long is eight years."

Before departing for Buffalo to continue his tour in behalf of Willkie, Louis acknowledged that he was growing a mustache—had been growing it for two weeks.

"I call it my political mustache," he said. He plans to remove it on election day "no matter who is elected."

Louis' campaign itinerary includes Buffalo and Cleveland today, and Dayton, Cincinnati and Indianapolis tomorrow.

AID OF PRESIDENT REGRETS "KNEEING"

Stephen Early Sends Message of Apology to Negro Officer.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 — A message of apology went today to a New York Negro policeman from Stephen Early, White House secretary, for whatever part Early may have had in the altercation which the policeman said resulted in his injury.

The incident, which Early called "regrettable" in a formal statement last night, occurred in New York's Pennsylvania station Monday night when a party of White House officials and newspapermen were attempting to board the presidential special train for Washington.

"I do not believe that I did anything wrong in this incident," Early said in making the apology. "I did not attack or kick any officer."

The policeman, James Sloan, 42, said the next day that he had suffered abdominal injury from a kick by a member of the presidential party. The same day Early told his press conference that in a jostling set-to he "gave the knee" to one of a group of officers who shoved him after refusing to examine his credentials, so he could board the train.

Early's statement last night, which charged that "in certain Republican quarters political importance is being attached to an unfortunate altercation," did not mention Sloan by name.

Word came from New York, meanwhile, that Sloan had told Joe Louis, world's heavyweight boxing champion and a Willkie supporter, that he was a Democrat and would vote for President Roosevelt next Tuesday. Louis visited Sloan's bedside yesterday.

State university, lectured on "Avianus and His Fables," and mentioned the political cartoons of Thomas Nast in Harpers magazine, based on some of the fables of this writer in the Fourth century A. D.

Other Papers

Two other papers were read, one by Dr. Vergil Hiatt of the College of Wooster on "Eavesdropping in Roman Comedy," dealing with the ancient Roman theater, and one by Dr. LeRoy A. Campbell of Hiram college on "Initiation Rites in the Mithraic Mysteries."

Last night the members were guests of the Marion public schools at a program and tea at Thomas A. Edison Junior High school. Miss Mabel Turney, Latin teacher at Harding High school and local chairman of arrangements, announced the program, which was the showing of motion pictures of industrial Marion. J. E. Frew, Edison principal, assisted with the program.

Mrs. Frew and Mrs. W. E. Orcutt, wife of the Central principal, presided at the tea table. Girls from St. Mary Parochial and Harding High school Latin classes assisted. They were Sally Dee, Barbara Jean Smith, Margaret Ann Luke, Mary Jane Chonto, Margaret Stuber and Mariann Zachman.

Assisting in various capacities, such as registrations and transportation are Carolyn King, Barbara Gottschall, Helen Ditter, William Gracely, Harold Mouser and Edwin Messenger. The Edison school boy patrol served as a guard for automobiles. Flowers for the tea and for the dinner tonight were furnished by members of the local Latin classes.

REPORTS CHAMBERLAIN ENROUTE TO U. S. SPIKED

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 1—Widely circulated reports that Neville Chamberlain was on his way to California in hopes of regaining his health brought from the former prime minister's secretary today the assertion that he "has not left this country and has no intention of doing so."

Chamberlain himself, the secretary added, regarded the reports as "such rubbish that he does not consider them worthy of a formal denial."

Anti-Nazi Unrest Reported Growing in Fallen France

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

I have received unimpeachable information that there is in France a growing anti-German unrest, accompanied by actual under-cover sabotage—a condition which casts still further light on Herr Hitler's anxiety to bring that country into the Nazi fold and secure the cooperation of the general public.

One suspects that the fuehrer is beginning to find much truth in the old Chinese adage that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

The Nazi chief has plowed a large portion of Europe under with his mighty war-machine without much opposition. He probably will plow more under, for it would be stupid not to recognize the terrific power which he wields.

New Danger Growing

But in every instance where he has occupied a country by force he has found that while he could break physical resistance he couldn't destroy the spirit of the nation as a whole. The situation in France is symptomatic of that existing in other parts of occupied Europe—a potential danger of vast proportions.

This can only be kept in hand by armed over-lordship, and that will be increasingly true as the conquered countries recover from the shock of assault. Hitler's "new order" is calculated to take care of that, if he can get it to functioning while bombs still fall and privation flaps about over Europe like a bloated vampire bat.

I understand that there has been a remarkable undercurrent change of sentiment in France in recent weeks. As you know, the country was utterly smashed by its terrible military defeat, and at that time there was much bitterness against the British (a flame fed eagerly by the Germans) because of a rather widespread feeling that the French had been "let down" by their ally.

Shift of Sentiment

However, there has been a widespread shift of sentiment in favor of England. This has been due mainly to the determined and successful British resistance. Germany's failure to launch the much-advertised invasion of England, and the material support which the United States has been affording Britain.

I don't wish to give the impression that a revolt is imminent in France. The country is too utterly defeated for that. However, the power of resistance presumably will grow, and already there is much sabotage reported in Nazi bases.

856 ABSENTEE VOTES CAST IN MARION CO.

Total at Deadline Presages Big Turnout Tuesday.

A total of 856 Marion county residents voted by absent and disabled voters ballot before the application deadline fell last night at 6:30, the election board reported today.

The total is regarded as indicative of a large vote next Tuesday even though it is far short of the more than 1,200 of the presidential election four years ago. In 1936 the rules were much less strict. Now, for instance, you have to swear that you will be at least 50 miles away from home on election day to get an absentee ballot. There are other new restrictions also.

There was no last minute rush last night, however, six applications came in by mail this morning and had to be disregarded.

Unique in the memory of election officials was one incident today. A Marion man who had applied for ballots sent them back to the board today from Allegheny, N. Y., but forgot to seal them in an official envelope. He had crammed the marked ballots into an ordinary small envelope and as a result they spilled out to public view.

Since no one is permitted to look at a man's ballots, election officials decided not to count these. They are saving them in case any protest is made.

It was explained that any one might have marked the ballots and mailed them in, since the only sign of who they were from was a return address on the envelope.

SCHOOL

for all school expenses while East Cleveland spends $27.80, Lakewood $26.50 and East Cleveland $26.40.

When it comes to current operating expenses, which are an included item in ranking for all purposes, Marion ranks fourteenth, or next to the bottom, with a figure of $4.50 per pupil. In current operating expenses Lakewood is first in the 15 with $9.81, East Cleveland is second with $9.78 and Cleveland Heights is third with $9.45.

Extra Levies Elsewhere.

Other Ohio school districts among the 15 with comparable enrollments which also are able to operate with a three-mill additional levy are Lima, Mansfield, Newark, Portsmouth, Warren and Zanesville. The average levy in the group of 15 is 3.05 mills outside the 10-mill limitation.

Discussing the renewal of the levy recently, Supt. E. E. Holt of the Marion schools said: "There are wealthier communities than Marion, to be sure, but they also pay higher rates in addition to being wealthy."

If Ohio's 109 school districts were listed in the order of the size of their tax rates for school purposes, Marion would be ninety-sixth from the top, having a comparatively low real estate tax rate.

The Star today is publishing unofficial copies of the various ballots which will be used in Marion county next Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Following are explanations of the proper way to mark your ballot, so that you will not lose your vote. At every election a considerable number of voters mark their ballots in an illegal manner, with the result that their votes are not counted.

PRESIDENTIAL BALLOT
(All Voters Get One)

This contains only two columns, Democratic and Republican. There are only two ways of marking this ballot. 1—You can put your X in the circle under the party emblem at the top of the ballot. 2—Or you can put your X in the blank to the left of the names of the candidates for whom you intend to vote, leaving the circles at the top empty.

You cannot split your vote; that is, you can't vote for a president of one party and vice president on another.

Under a new ruling you cannot "scratch" this ballot. This means that if you put your X in the circle at the top of one ticket and then put another X in the blank beside the candidates of the other ticket, your ballot is thrown away. If you do this, officials cannot determine whom you are voting for and hence must discard your ballot.

STATE-COUNTY-DISTRICT BALLOT
(All Voters Get One)

This contains candidates for various state offices, for congressman-at-large, district congressman, state senator and various county candidates.

There are four ways of marking this ballot legally, two for a straight ballot and two for a split ballot:

Straight voting (for all candidates of one party)—You can put your X in the circle under the emblem of your party and mark nowhere else. Or you can go down the list of your party and put an X beside every name.

Scratch voting (splitting your votes between the two tickets)—You can put your X in the circle under the emblem of one party, then go across to the other party and put your X beside the names of any of its candidates you particularly like. The second method of splitting your vote is to disregard the circles under the party emblems entirely and instead go down the lists of both parties and X your favorite candidate for each office.

There are two exceptions which appear on Tuesday's ballot. If you wish to split your ticket, you must watch carefully in voting for county commissioner and congressman-at-large since two each of these are to be elected. Be sure (if you split your ticket) to X two names for each of these offices.

JUDICIAL BALLOT
(Every Voter Gets One)

This ballot contains candidates for various state, district and county judgeships. It is nonpartisan and self-explanatory.

SPECIAL ISSUE BALLOTS

Marion City School District—Each voter in this district (all Marion city precincts and parts of Marion Township North and South precincts) will get one. The ballots are plainly marked for you to vote whichever way you wish.

Grand Prairie Rural School District—Each voter in this district gets a special school levy ballot. These also are plainly marked.

Caledonia School District—Each voter in this district will receive a school tax ballot, clearly marked.

Prospect School District—Every voter in this district will receive a special school tax ballot, clearly marked.

Brief biographical sketches of the candidates listed in the ballots appear in today's Star on page 4.

Quints Lose Tonsils

● The removal of all of the Quints ten tonsils at one stroke of the pen—I mean sweep of the scalpel—has caused a good deal of speculation and questioning in medical circles. The conservatives in the profession for years have been contending that tonsils in young children should not be removed just because they exist.

When, then, the Dionne quintuplets each had a tonsillectomy it raised some natural inquisitiveness. As one doctor wrote, "Those of us who try to protect the public from needless operations find it difficult to explain why such perfectly reared children should all at the same time have tonsils so diseased that they had to be removed."

The American Medical Association felt the question was important enough to take to headquarters and sent it to Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the Quints' famous doctor, who replied as follows (abstracted):

"First of all, let me make clear that I am opposed to the removal of tonsils when it is not necessary. In the case of the Dionne children they had been subject to repeated attacks of tonsillitis. A professor of diseases of children at Toronto University examined them and reported: 'The tonsils and adenoids are in a chronic state of inflammation, with enlargement of the lymph-nodes in the neck—the latter is palpable evidence that the infection from the tonsils is spreading and at any time may get into the whole system.' After this report it would have been criminal to delay further. As for the surprise expressed at the infection appearing in all five at the same time, I find it difficult to understand. I, on the contrary, would have been surprised if the infection had occurred only in part of the set. This is an identical set, living in an identical environment. The appearance of a disorder in one individual and its failure to appear in others when no difference of heredity or environment exists would be surprising, indeed, to me."

Good Guide.

The report certainly completely justifies Dr. Dafoe and furnishes a good guide for the layman of what a doctor thinks are the indications for tonsil removal—repeated attacks of tonsillitis, followed by large, chronically infected tonsils and invasion of the lymph-nodes in the neck.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Edith Fairfax's News Sends Dicky Off, Despite Madge's Plea, on a Mission to "Save Baby!"

THE NURSE was first in the room, and issued a swift command as she prepared a hypodermic.

"Hold her until I get this in!"

It was a struggle for all of us, for Edith appeared determined to dash her brains out against the bed post. But when Miss Whitlock said quietly, "Please go now, all of you. I can manage her," Dicky drew me outside the room and down the hall where Lillian could not hear him.

"I've only got a minute to explain," he said. "I must get to Dad, and tell him I've got to leave here for a few hours. You remember the story I started to tell you, and you wouldn't let me finish. I spoke of Babs, the sister, I supposed, of that woman you saw in the restaurant. Ede tells me she tried to save me, double-crossed the gang—you know what that means. There's a chance I can rescue the poor kid before the gang finds her."

He stopped and looked at me, a mute appeal in his eyes. But at the mention of the name of Babs, the meanness and perversity which lie deep in every woman's heart when her jealously is excited, were like congealing ice which ignored his appeal.

"You're going to leave your children—and your mother in this peril while you're gone on this—errand?" My pride would not permit me to add "your wife."

A Point of Honor

"It's a point of honor," my husband pleaded. "I've got to. I could never live with myself or anybody else. You don't understand. Won't you try to understand?"

A devil within me hardened my heart, and I ignored his outstretched arms.

"I understand only too well," I said icily, and turned away.

"Very well," he said dully. "If that's the way you feel. Goodbye!"

He rushed to my father's room, and a minute later, snatching his hat and coat, hurried out of the house.

From a corner where he could not see me, I stood watching him, longing to cry out to him, but unable to bury my outraged pride. But when I heard the sound of the motor starting, the ice broke around my heart, and I ran like a wild thing to the door, flung it open and called my husband's name frantically. But he was already out of earshot, and I came back into the house wildly remorseful, and agonizedly wondering if I ever should see him again.

In some way I got through the ordeal of dinner, and then, with Lillian and Katherine, saw to the transfer of the women and children of the household from the second floor rooms to the library. But I must have betrayed my hidden emotional turmoil, for I noticed that Lillian and Katherine were unobstrusively thinking for me, and reminding me of things they knew I wished to do.

"Didn't you want to telephone the Lansfield?" Katherine asked when we had finished with the library, and with a start I realized that Bill and Hanks must have reached the city. But when I telephoned the hotel, I received a disquieting message.

"Yes, your nephews reached here about an hour ago," the hotel clerk said, "and we gave them the money which Mr. Veritzen had directed us to hand them.

"They had dinner served in their room, and a few minutes later ordered a taxi, and left the hotel. They did not say where they were going or when they would be back. But of course we would have thought nothing of that, if it had not been for — other circumstances."

"What circumstances?" I asked sharply.

The Mysterious Friend

"I don't think there is any cause for alarm," the clerk said with quick professional smoothness. "But perhaps I would better tell you that they seemed much agitated, and forgot to leave the key to their room at the desk. They each had a small traveling bag, but left all their other luggage in their rooms. What would you like us to do, if anything? Of course there is no question of holding their rooms. Mr. Veritzen has that suite permanently."

"There is nothing to do," I returned crisply, "except to have them call the Sag Harbor house immediately they come in."

"We will do that," he assured me, and I hung up the receiver with a wondering fear of what could have happened to upset the boys, and an uneasiness as to their whereabouts. It was an uneasiness that grew as the evening waned, and when the telephone from the guardhouse sounded, I was seized with the fantastic conviction that the boys had come to the farmhouse.

But it was a still more amazing message that came over the wires.

"There is a young lady in a car out here who says she is a friend of Mr. Philip Veritzen, and must see him," the trooper said.

Harding Beats Galion, Lands in Three-Way NCO Tie

Marion Players Score 34-0 Win; Share League Top Spot with Bucyrus and Shelby.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

Marion Harding gridders thumped Galion, 34-0, last night at Harding stadium to bounce back into a tie for leadership of the North Central Ohio conference. While the Presidents were winning before some 2,500 home fans, Bucyrus shellacked Mt. Vernon, 28-13, and today both victorious teams share the NCO driver's seat with Shelby.

That the conference chase may end that way has been conceded by most observers, although Shelby is a sure-fire bet to get a slice of the title since the Whippets need only to dispose of Galion. Other games which will have a very important bearing on the outcome of the title fight are next week's visit of Marion to Mt. Vernon and the Bucyrus-Ashland clash.

The Presidents had things their own way last night against the Orangemen and never permitted the visitors within 25 yards of scoring territory. Compiling 118 yards as scrimmage to 55 for Galion, the locals had nine first downs against a pair for their foes and gained 44 yards via passes to the opposition's 14.

Pass Leads to Score

A 17-yard Edington-to-Kemmerly pass that was ruled complete on the seven-yard stripe because of interference set up Ferguson's touchdown plunge on the first play of the second quarter. Guard Martin Lewis blocked and recovered a punt behind the Galion goal accounted for one score and a pass that started from the 40-yard stripe, Roberts-to-Ferguson, accounted for another touchdown by halftime.

Edington skirted the end of the line from six yards out for a third quarter touchdown. The stage was set for the score by a 12-yard Gilbert - to - Kemmerly aerial. Early in the fourth period Wayne Short, guard, tackled a Galion ball carried behind the goal for a safety. In the closing minutes Gilbert hurled a 23-yard pass to Bowers and then plunged the remaining two yards for the touchdown.

A more complete summary of the game follows:

Petty Runs Back 15

Petty took the opening kick-off, returning 15 yards to Marion's 41. Hurst, Petty, Belknap and Ferguson each bucked the line, advancing to the Galion 35, before Ferguson punted on fourth down, the ball going out on the 30. Gilson's five-yard gain was canceled by an offside penalty, a pass was incomplete and Gilson booted to Ferguson, who returned 16 to the Galion 46. Ferguson hit center for five, Belknap got eight, Hurst nine, Petty four, but with fourth down on the 10-yard stripe Carmel knocked down a pass to stop Harding's drive. A lateral pass was intercepted on the 20 by Petty, who then plunged for two yards before the Presidents were penalized for backfield in motion. Officials ruled interference by Hoffman on an Edington-to-Kemmerly aerial giving Marion a first down on the seven as the quarter closed.

Second Quarter

On the first play of the second period Ferguson broke through for the touchdown and Short added the point from placement. DeWalt returned the kick-off 20 yards then hit center for five but the Orangemen were held and Gilson punted. Edington made a 20-yard return to the Galion 45, then with Ferguson's help made a first down on the 35 in two plays. Edington picked up six and Gilbert four. A five-yard penalty for taking too much time might have stopped the Presidents except for Gilbert's eight-yard toss to Edwards, good for a first down on the 22. Galion recovered a fumble on the 17, but was ruled offside twice and shoved back to the five, from which point Lewis and Keller broke through to block a punt. Lewis covered the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. Two plays after Marion's kick-off Edington intercepted Carmel's pass and Harding had possession 30 yards out. Ferguson picked up five, Marion was penalized as much for being offside, three passes were incomplete and Galion regained the ball only to have Keller intercept DeWalt's pass on the first play. On the second aerial attempt from the 40 Roberts heaved 10 yards to Ferguson, who slashed his way through the Galion secondary and jogged over for the touchdown that put Marion in front, 19-0. DeWalt made a 35-yard return of Ferguson's kick-off, Marion was penalized 15 yards for piling on and DeWalt hit center for five to the Marion 34 as the half ended.

Second Half

Crim returned the half-time kick-off nine yards to the Galion 25, and with fourth and 10 Galion kicked to the Harding 36. Roberts' pass was intercepted by Carmel. Crim hit the line for five, a Carmel-to-Huffman pass was good for 14 to Marion's 21 and two plays later Hurst intercepted to stop the Orangemen's thrust into Harding territory. On second down Edington quick-kicked to the Galion 32. A fumble and recovery cost the visitors 18 yards and Galion punted from the 10 to midfield, Ferguson returning to the 35. Ferguson lateraled as he was tackled, officials ruling the ball dead. Edington picked up nine yards, Gilbert tossed over center to Ferguson for nine more and then heaved to Kemmerly for 12 and a first on the Galion six. Edington swept around right end for the touchdown and Pete Bascos booted the extra point from placement. The score: 26-0. Carmel returned Short's kick-off 10 yards to the Galion 20 before the quarter was completed.

Fourth Quarter

Galion and Marion subs took over the backfield duties and the Orangemen marched to a first down, Jenkins and Fawble lugging the ball, on Marion's 34. A partially blocked punt and 10-yard return by Petty gave the Presidents possession on their own 38. Edington's kick was downed on the Galion 24. A reverse and lateral lost 15 and with third and 25, Short blocked a punt and tackled the Galion runner behind the goal for a safety. Hodges received the Orangemen's kick from placement on his own 40 and raced 13 yards to the Galion 47. Marion was penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct. Edington punted to the Galion 23 and a return boot was blocked by Short and recovered by Messenger on the Galion 25. Belknap picked up five, a pass, Gilbert-to-Bowers was good for 17 and a first down on the three yard line. Gilbert hit center for the touchdown and a pass play for the added point missed fire. Harding kicked off and Galion ran three line plays, Jenkins getting four yards, before the game-ending gun sounded.

Gophers' Yells Roll On —But Gal Leaders Pout

"Unhappy are we," say Phyllis, Anna Mae and Mary.

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Life is dark for a few of the girls at the University of Minnesota.

They didn't go to college just to be cheer leaders but somewhere along the line they decided to help out the hard working fellows who stir up sideline encouragement for the mighty Golden Gophers.

So these three pretty little girls—Phyllis Brislin, Anna Mae Harris and Mary Leahy — spent all last summer polishing up their capers. They learned to wheel, whirl, leap and call for that "Great Big Locomotive."

They made life miserable for the neighbors, doing their daily routine before imaginary ian-packed stadia. They chanted the old battle cry: "M I N N E S O T A," repeating three times with the choo-choo effect at the finish.

Came school time and they were ready to roar. So was the football team. It has been roaring ever since to the tune of that "Great Big Locomotive."

But Phyllis, Anna Mae and Mary haven't been on the sidelines to help things along. They got sidetracked. The fondly planned coed cheering crew was shunted to a siding by university chiefs who thought the men folks were doing well enough. A similar ruling bans drum majorettes at Minnesota.

Glum and disappointed, Phylis, who is 18, and a sophomore, says hoarsely of the ruling: "It's silly, narrow-minded and prejudiced."

From Anna Mae: "I think it's mean and unfair after we had worked all summer."

And from Mary: "I just think the boys couldn't stand the competition."

The loss is terrific but the Golden Gopliers are doing right well despite the handicap, bidding again for national glory.

SUGAR BOWL GAME SPECULATION BEGINS

It Looks Like Boston College Against Tennessee.

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Nov. 1—You can print on your hatband the names of Tennessee and Boston College as probable New Year's day opponents in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl football classic.

And Clemson of South Carolina is rated an odds-on choice for the Orange Bowl game at Miami, Fla., with speculation that undefeated Georgetown might be invited as an opponent.

With the bids only a month away, there are few teams of bowl caliber ready, willing and able to fill the exacting bill. Fewer still are available in the south, and both the Sugar Bowl and Orange Bowl like a southern flavor on one side of the field when the teams line up.

Sugar Bowl officials are traditionally reluctant to speculate on probable choices. But sports writer Fred Digby, of the New Orleans Item long has been associated with the Sugar Bowl group, and is regarded as something of an unofficial spokesman through his column. And his word is Tennessee vs. Boston College.

Digby contends that Texas A. & M., last year's Sugar Bowl winner, is Rose Bowl-bound, and rates the Aggies definitely out of the Sugar Bowl speculation.

The Orange Bowl committee already has disposed of all seats between the 30-yard lines, and the Sugar Bowl is nearly as far along.

Football Tough? You Should Have Seen It Back in "The Good Old Days" Around Here

The "good old days" in the early part of the century and before, when anything went in a football game, were recalled recently in a letter from Dr. Jesse F. Williams, former Kenton gridder, now a staid and circumspect author of textbooks and director of physical education for Columbia university.

His letter, written to Claude Henkle of Kenton, touched off a series of reminiscences in Marion, chiefly by A. W. "Bert" Curtis of 625 South Prospect street, athletic luminary of days gone by.

One play in 1903 or 1904, mentioned by Dr. Williams, was a familiar one to Bert.

"In one game," Dr. Williams wrote "—I think it was with Marion or Lima—we had a play in which the back, after pretending to punt, raced up the stairs formed by the others who knelt quickly behind center, and then jumped over the line feet first."

Led Dirty Work

Dr. Williams was captain of that championship Kenton team, which spent hours perfecting plays they could use only once, freak plays which would set a referee crazy today and earn at least a 75-yard penalty.

It wasn't rare, Mr. Curtis recalled, for a team to take one of their lightweight backfield men and hurl him bodily over the opposing line (with the ball in his arms) if they needed a few yards.

Another favorite trick involved hiding the ball under the sweater of one man, who usually ran unmolested for a long gain.

Bert recalled one time when this worked for Ohio State.

"State had a little hunchback for quarterback—one of the best I've ever seen. They shoved the ball inside his sweater and he ran all the way to the goal line without anyone bothering him."

This play resulted in a rule against hiding footballs inside your shirt. Now you have to carry it in plain view of everybody—or at least reasonably so.

Case Beat Michigan

Michigan, powerhouse team of 1940, would laugh at the idea of being beaten by little Case School of Applied Science of Cleveland. But back 35 or 40 years ago, maybe more, Case did it, Bert remembers.

They used the same "ladder" play mentioned by Dr. Williams in his letter, with one of the men climbing on the backs and shoulders of his colleagues and then just jumping over the goal line.

You can't do that today. It's too dangerous. There are a lot of other things you can't do today without being banned from football — but years ago they were everyday commonplaces.

Take the "ringers," for instance. Hardly a school existed that didn't have strictly illegal players. Marion High school was no exception.

Delaware High school used to be good enough to scrimmage every day but Friday with the Ohio Wesleyan varsity, Bert remembers. At that time Wesleyan had only enough men for one good team and the high schoolers served as the scrubs.

A Real Hero

One of the ancient gridiron greats of Delaware was a powerful brute by the name of "Big Barney."

"A professional strong man," Mr. Curtis explains. "One time the team decided to see just how good he was, so they agreed just to make a hole in the line for him and then let him go as far as he could by himself.

"The deaf and dumb school (from Columbus) was playing there that day. Well, the team made a hole for Big Barney and he went through and kept on going for 33 yards with his head down. When they finally got him stopped there were seven of those guys hanging on him."

Bert added that this was one time that Big Barney got mad when he saw all his teammates standing idly by, way down the field.

His strength must have been prodigious. Bert tells of once when he single-handed put a derailed Delaware street car back on the tracks.

And it was nothing for him to grab two husky football players, one with each hand, and hold them in the air at arm's length.

Big Barney was an outstanding "ringer," but there were others—big bruisers, who never saw the inside of a school, playing for dear old Alma Mammy.

Maybe it isn't so different today, after all. We have "subsidized" athletes instead.

GREECE PINS HOPE ON METAXAS LINE

Italians Face Extensive System of Fortifications.

By The Associated Press

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY, Nov. 1.—Greece pins her initial hopes of resisting Italian invasion from Albania on natural fortresses of her mountainous northwest augmented by the extensive system of "the Metaxas line."

The Metaxas line, named after Premier John Metaxas, runs the length of the Albanian-Greek frontier from the Ionian coast to Lake Ventrok—about 100 miles as the crow flies—and stretches on along the Yugoslav and Bulgarian frontiers to the Turkish border.

The original Metaxas line was directed chiefly against Bulgaria.

But when Italy seized Albania in April, 1939, the Greek government built new fortifications, at a reported cost of more than $6,000,000, to defend her northwest frontier against the new threat.

Details of the line are secret but it is believed to consist of strategically-placed concrete fortifications, earthworks, pilliboxes and barbed wire tank-traps—all designed to supplement the natural defenses afforded by the rugged upland country.

Special attention is said to have been devoted to the old fortified town of Ioannina (Janina), which commands two of the four principal routes from southern Albania and which already has emerged as a key Italian objective in the very opening of the invasion.

The mountains make northwestern Greece a natural walled fortress and apparently the Greek army's general plan is to force attackers into narrow mountainous bottle-necks.

PROFIT TAKING CHECKS RALLY

Despite Some Setbacks, However, Several Leaders Hit New Highs.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Profits looked good to many traders in today's stock market after yesterday's sharp upswing.

The result was that an early extension of the drive failed to follow through and gains of fractions to a point or so for steels, utilities, rails and an assortment of industrial specialties were shaded near the fourth hour. Dealings, fast on the initial move, slowed as prices slipped.

Brokers still held to the argument that the broadening industrial base was the principal market prop.

Among stocks making new tops for the year in the forenoon were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible, Great Northern and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Supported were General Motors, Caterpillar Tractor, Boeing, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Texas Corp., North American, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of N. J., J. I. Case and Johns-Manville.

A bit backward were Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak and American Can.

WHEAT PRICE TAKES IRREGULAR COURSE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 — Grain traders had a difficult time marking decisions on the course of wheat action today as prices of various cereals fluctuated nervously and irregularly. Veteran traders said it was a typical pre-election market.

Wheat at one stage was off a cent a bushel. Profit taking and evening up of accounts contributed to selling pressure, with dealers keeping close watch on the trend of securities. Commercial activity was slow and brokers predicted that little milling or baking trade business could be expected until after the election.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ lower compared with yesterday, December 84-84⅛, May 83¾-¾; corn ¼-½ higher, December 59¾, May 60⅛; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher.
